EUROPEAN JOURNAL OF HOMELESSNESS

Journal Philosophy
The European Journal of Homelessness provides a critical analysis of policy and practice on homelessness in Europe for policy makers, practitioners, researchers and academics. The aim is to stimulate debate on homelessness and housing exclusion at the European level and to facilitate the development of a stronger evidential base for policy development and innovation. The journal seeks to give international exposure to significant national, regional and local developments and to provide a forum for comparative analysis of policy and practice in preventing and tackling homelessness in Europe. The journal will also assess the lessons for Europe, which can be derived from policy, practice and research from elsewhere.

Editorial Team
Eoin O’Sullivan, School of Social Work and Social Policy, University of Dublin, Trinity College, Ireland (Lead Editor)
Volker Busch-Geertsema, GISS (Association for Innovative Social Research and Social Planning), Bremen, Germany (Coordinator of European Observatory on Homelessness)
Nicholas Pleace, Centre for Housing Policy, University of York, UK
Isabel Baptista, CESIS (Centro de Estudos para a Intervenção Social), Lisbon, Portugal
Nóra Teller, Metropolitan Research Institute, Budapest, Hungary
Lars Benjaminsen, Danish National Centre for Social Research, Copenhagen, Denmark
Deborah Quilgars, Centre for Housing Policy, University of York, UK

Editorial Assistants
Jemimah Bailey, School of Social Work and Social Policy, Trinity College Dublin, Ireland
Caroline O’Nolan, School of Social Work and Social Policy, Trinity College Dublin, Ireland
Contributors

Alexandra Alamanou
Klimaka, NGO, Athens, Greece
alamanou@klimaka.org.gr

Kate Amore
He Kainga Oranga/Housing & Health Research Programme
Department of Public Health, University of Otago Wellington, New Zealand
kate.amore@otago.ac.nz

Ana Bologi
BMSZKI
Budapest, Hungary
annabalogi@gmail.com

Isabel Baptista
CESIS – Centro de Estudos para a Intervenção Social Lisbon, Portugal
isabel.baptista@cesis.org

Rita Bence
Hungarian Civil Liberties Union
Budapest, Hungary
bencerita@tasz.hu

Lars Benjaminsen
SFI – The Danish National Centre for Social Research
Copenhagen, Denmark
lab@sfi.dk

Volker Busch-Geertsema
Gesellschaft für Innovative Sozialforschung und Sozialplanung (Association for Innovative Research and Social Planning)
Bremen, Germany
vbg@giss-ev.de

Joanne Bretherton
Centre for Housing Policy
University of York, UK
joanne.bretherton@york.ac.uk
Aidan Culhane
Department of Environment, Community and Local Government
Dublin, Ireland
Aidan.Culhane@environ.ie

Joe Doherty
Department of Geography and Sustainable Development
University of St Andrews, Scotland jd@st-andrews.ac.uk

Evelyn Dyb
Norwegian Institute for Urban and Regional Research
Oslo, Norway
evelyn.dyb@nibr.no

Boroka Fehér
BMSZKI
Budapest, Hungary
feher.boroka@bmszki.hu

Stephen Gaetz
York University
Toronto, Canada
SGaetz@edu.yorku.ca

Susanne Gerull
Alice Salomon Hochschule
Berlin, Germany
mail@susannegerull.de

Liz Gosme
Policy Officer, FEANTSA
Brussels, Belgium
liz.gosme@feantsa.org

Ronni Michelle Greenwood
Psychology Department
University of Limerick, Republic of Ireland
Ronni.Greenwood@ul.ie

Simon Güntner
Hamburg University of Applied Sciences
Hamburg, Germany
simon.guentner@haw-hamburg.de Jamie Harding
Department of Social Sciences and Languages
Northumbria University, UK

Laura Huey
Department of Sociology
University of Western Ontario, Canada
lhuey@uwo.ca

Kyriakos Katsadoros
Klimaka, NGO, Athens, Greece
Katsadoros@klimaka.org.gr

Padraic Kenna
School of Law
National University of Ireland, Galway, Republic of Ireland padraic.kenna@nuigalway.ie

Michele Lancione
Cambridge University, U.K. michelelancione@gmail.com

John van Leerdam
Cebeon, Centrum Beleidsadviserend Onderzoek b.v.
Amsterdam, the Netherlands
cebeon@cebeon.nl

Jürgen von Mahs
The New School, New York, USA
freiherr@newschool.edu

Stephen Metraux
University of the Sciences
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, USA
s.metraux@usp.edu

Don Mitchell
Department of Geography
Syracuse University, USA
dmmitc01@maxwell.syr.edu

Stephan Nagel
Diakonisches Werk Hamburg, Germany
nagel@diakonie-hamburg.de Cathal O’Connell
School of Applied Social Studies
University College Cork, Ireland
c.oconnell@ucc.ie

Peter O’Neill
Housing Rights Service
Northern Ireland
peteroneill@housingrights.org.uk

Deborah K. Padgett
Silver School of Social Work
New York University, USA
deborah.padgett@nyu.edu

Mina Petrović
Department of Sociology, University of Belgrade,
Belgrade, Serbia
mipetrov@sbb.rs

Michel Planije
Trimbos-instituut
Netherlands Institute of Mental Health and Addiction, Netherlands
mplanije@trimbos.nl

Niamh Randall
Simon Communities of Ireland (National Office)
niamh@simoncommunity.com

Deborah Quilgars
Centre for Housing Policy
University of York, UK
deborah.quilgars@york.ac.uk

Ingrid Sahlin
School of Social Work
Lund University, Sweden
Ingrid.Sahlin@soch.lu.se

Sarah Sheridan
School of Social Work and Social Policy
Trinity College Dublin, Ireland
sasherid@tcd.ie
Morena Šoštarić
Faculty of Law, University of Zagreb
Croatia
morena18sostaric@gmail.com

Ana Stefancic
Pathways to Housing, and Columbia University Mailman School of Public Health
New York, USA
stefancic@pathwaystohousing.org

Jeremy Swain
CEO, Thames Reach
London, UK
Jeremy.Swain@thamesreach.org.uk

Marie-Eve Sylvestre
Faculty of Law
University of Ottawa, Canada
msylvest@uOttawa.ca

Nora Teller
Metropolitan Research Institute
Budapest, Hungary
teller.nora@mri.hu

Milena Timotijević
Housing Center
Belgrade, Serbia
mtimotijevic@housingcenter.org.rs

Olga Theodorikakou
Klimaka, NGO, Athens, Greece
central@klimaka.org.gr

Mathijs Tuynman
Trimbos-instituut
Netherlands Institute of Mental Health and Addiction, Netherlands
MTuynman@trimbos.nl

Éva Tessza Udvarhelyi
The City is for All
Budapest, Hungary
evatessza@hotmail.com
International Advisory Committee of the European Journal of Homelessness

Professor Isobel Anderson (University of Stirling), UK
Professor Pedro José Cabrera (Comillas Pontifical University of Madrid), Spain
Professor Jochen Clasen (University of Edinburgh), UK
Professor Dennis P. Culhane (University of Pennsylvania), USA
Dr. Pascal De Decker (Hogeschool Gent), Belgium
Professor Emeritus Joe Doherty (University of St Andrews), UK
Dr. Evelyn Dyb (Norwegian Institute for Urban and Regional Research), Norway
Mr. Bill Edgar (European Housing Research Ltd), UK
Professor Suzanne Fitzpatrick (Heriot-Watt University, Edinburgh), UK
Professor Paul Flatau (Murdoch University), Australia
Professor Stephen Gaetz (York University), Canada
Professor Susanne Gerull (Alice Salomon Hochschule Berlin), Germany
Professor József Hegedüs (Metropolitan Research Institute Budapest), Hungary
Professor Claire Lévy-Vroelant (Université Paris 8 -Vincennes – Saint-Denis), France
Professor Thomas Maloutas (Harokopio University, Athens), Greece
Dr. Magdalena Mostowska (University of Warsaw), Poland
Professor Ingrid Sahlin (Lund University), Sweden
Professor Marybeth Shinn (Vanderbilt University), USA
Dr. Svetlana Stephenson (London Metropolitan University), UK
Professor Antonio Tosi (Politecnico University of Milan), Italy
Professor Judith Wolf (UMC St Radboud, Nijmegen), The Netherlands

Consultative Committee of the European Journal of Homelessness

Christian Perl, Austria
Danny Lescrauwaet, Belgium
Jiri Ružicka, Czech Republic
John Eriksen, Denmark
Hannu Puttonen, Finland
André Gachet, France
Thomas Specht, Germany
Dimitra Soulele, Greece
Peter Bakos, Hungary
Niamh Randall, Ireland
Stefano Galliani, Italy

Aida Karčiauskienė, Lithuania
René Kneip, Luxembourg
Jakub Wilczek, Poland
Henrique Pinto, Portugal
Ian Tilling, Romania
Špela Razpotnik, Slovenia
Sonia Olea, Spain
Kjell Larsson, Sweden
Rina Beers, The Netherlands
Robert Aldridge, UK
Content

Editorial

Articles

Nicholas Pleave and Joanne Bretherton
The Case for Housing First in the European Union:
A Critical Evaluation of Concerns about Effectiveness 21

Liz Gosme
The Europeanisation of Homelessness Policy: Myth or Reality? 43

Boróka Fehér and Anna Balogi
From the Forest to Housing: Challenges Faced by Former Rough Sleepers in the Private Rental Market in Hungary 63

Policy Reviews

Isabel Baptista
The First Portuguese Homelessness Strategy: Progress and Obstacles 87

Lars Benjaminsen
Policy Review Up-date: Results from the Housing First based Danish Homelessness Strategy 109

Rita Bence and Éva Tessza Udvarhelyi
The Growing Criminalization of Homelessness in Hungary – A Brief Overview 133

Aidan Culhane and Niamh Randall Reflections on the Leuven Roundtable on Homelessness:
the End of the Beginning? 145
John van Leerdam
Analysing Costs and Benefits of Homelessness Policies in the Netherlands: Lessons for Europe 157

Michel Planije and Mathijs Tuynman
Homelessness Policy in the Netherlands: Nationwide Access to Shelter under Pressure from Local Connection Criteria? 183

Olga Theodorikakou, Alexandra Alamanou and Kyriakos Katsadoros
“Neo-homelessness” and the Greek Crisis 203

Peter O’Neill
Meeting the Housing Needs of Vulnerable Homeless People in Northern Ireland 211

Think Pieces
Kate Amore
Focusing on Conceptual Validity: A Response 223

Michele Lancione
How is Homelessness? 237

Simon Güntner and Jamie Harding
Active Inclusion – an Effective Strategy to Tackle Youth Homelessness? 249

Profiling Homelessness: Serbia and Croatia
Mina Petrović and Milena Timotijević
Homelessness and Housing Exclusion in Serbia 267

Morena Šoštarić
Responses to “Preparing Homeless People for Independent Living and its Influence on Resettlement Outcomes”

Ingrid Sahlin
Preparing or Postponing? 303

Ronni Michelle Greenwood and Ana Stefancic
Some Additional Thoughts on Housing and Services for Adults with Histories of Homelessness 311

Jeremy Swain
A Comment 317

Volker Busch-Geertsema
Swimming Can Better be Learned in the Water Than Anywhere Else 323

Responses to “The Discourse of Consumer Choice in the Pathways Housing First Model”

Nicholas Pleace
Consumer Choice in Housing First 329

Deborah K. Padgett
Choices, Consequences and Context: Housing First and its Critics 341
Responses to “Varieties of Punitiveness in Europe: Homelessness and Urban Marginality”

Don Mitchell
On “Varieties of Punitiveness in Europe”: A View from the United States 351

Stephen Gaetz
The Criminalization of Homelessness: A Canadian Perspective 357

Marie-Eve Sylvestre
Narratives of Punishment: Neoliberalism, Class Interests and the Politics of Social Exclusion 363

Evelyn Dyb
Neo-liberal versus Social Democratic Policies on Homelessness: The Nordic Case 371

Joe Doherty
Situating Homelessness 379

Jürgen von Mahs
Punitive Approaches and Welfare State Intervention: Reflections and Future Research Directions 391

Research in Progress

Progress Report of On-going Research: A Strengths Based Intervention for Homeless Youths: The Effectiveness and Fidelity of Houvast 397

The Risk of Homelessness in a Scandinavian Welfare State 403

Research Project on Prevention of Homelessness in North Rhine-Westphalia, Germany 405

Caring for the Homeless and the Poor in Greece: Implications for the Future of Social Protection and Social Inclusion 407
Reviews

Filipa Lourenço Menezes (2012)
Percursos Sem-Abrigo. Histórias das ruas de Paris, Lisboa e Londres. 429

Josef Hegedus, Martin Lux and Nora Teller (Eds.) (2013)
Social Housing in Transition Countries. 435

Kristina E. Gibson (2011)
Street Kids – Homeless Youth, Outreach and the Policing of New York’s Streets. 439

Ella Howard (2013)
Homeless: Poverty and Place in Urban America. 445

Vanessa Oliver (2013)
Healing Home: Health and Homelessness in the Life Stories of Young Women. 451

Ray Forrest and Ngai-Ming Yip (Eds.) (2013)
Young People and Housing: Transitions, Trajectories and Generational Fractures. 455

Stadt Wien [City of Vienna] (Ed.; 2012)

Volker Busch-Geertsema and Ekke-Ulf Ruhstrat (2012)

Jessie Hohmann (2013)
The Right to Housing – Law, Concepts, Possibilities. 467
Editorial

Fostering robust debates on the polices and practices that can end homelessness are central to the founding principles of the European Journal of Homelessness, and we hope this latest edition of the Journal provides our diverse audience with information and perspectives that can inform their practices and policy making.

A key topic of discussion over the past year has been the applicability of Housing First in the member states of the European Union, and for those convinced of its applicability, how to translate the principles of Housing First into practice, and in particular, how significant fidelity to original New York model is in achieving successful outcomes. The publication of the Housing First Europe report (Busch-Geertsema, 2013) in June and the hosting of a conference on this topic in Amsterdam in the same month was a significant milestone in debating Housing First in Europe. A further conference in September in Berlin on the topic of ‘Housing First. What’s Second?’ ensured that this critical dialogue was both maintained and expanded, whilst a third Housing First conference in Lisbon, attracting some 200 delegates in early December 2013, demonstrated the on-going interest amongst service providers and policy makers in policy and practice transfer. In addition a peer–review of the Danish Housing First Homelessness Strategy was held in Copenhagen in November.

These on-going debates on the utility of Housing First models for the member states of the European Union are judiciously reviewed by Pleace and Bretherton, who conclude that the increasingly robust evidence on the effectiveness of Housing First warrants widespread adoption across the EU. In Vol. 6(2) of the Journal, Maureen Crane and colleagues suggested that preparation for housing was helpful in sustaining tenancies and we include responses by Ingrid Sahlin, Ronni Michelle Greenwood, Ana Stefanic, Jeremy Swain and Volker Busch Geertsema to allow for a productive debate on the usefulness of preparing homeless people for housing in temporary accommodation, rather than placing them directly in housing. Nicholas Pleace and Deborah K. Padgett also respond to an earlier article in the Journal on the importance of consumer choice in Housing First and to what degree this represents a strategic governmentalisation tactic to ensure personal responsibility. Both Padgett and Pleace argue, with different emphases, that choice is important and can bring significant benefits to homeless people, but that all service provision models should be open to, and welcome constructive criticism.
Certainly, the up-date on the Housing First based Danish Homelessness Strategy by Lars Benjaminsen provides solid empirical evidence for the effectiveness of a Housing First based approach to ending homelessness, and outlines a clear methodology for measuring and evaluating the effectiveness of Housing First type responses to homelessness. This review notes that while the overall extent of homelessness increased in Denmark between 2009 and 2012, this is attributed to both macro-structural factors on the one hand, and practice provision on the other. Significantly, the municipalities that utilised Housing First approaches to homelessness showed only modest increases in general, compared to municipalities that utilised ‘housing ready’ models of practice. Crucial to this process, is of course how we define homelessness, and Kate Amore provides further sophisticated refinements to the ETHOS typology in her latest contribution to the Journal. Defining homelessness is not only an empirical project, but also a normative one, and the debate generated by the ETHOS typology is an excellent example of the reflective debates that are crucial to reaching a consensus on the definition and measurement of homelessness.

While an increasing number of member states are adopting Housing First / Housing Led policies, translating these, often national level, policies into practice, has proven in some cases to be problematic for operational and financial reasons. In her review of the Portuguese Homelessness Strategy, Isabel Baptista, traces the evolution of the Strategy and the substantial implementation difficulties to-date. Similarly, the O’Neill paper notes the difficulties of accessing sufficient good quality accommodation units when attempting to deliver housing first policies in Northern Ireland, as do Boroka Fehér and Ana Balogi in relation to Budapest. This is an emerging important topic of research, where detailed case studies of progress and blockages in implementing Housing First / Housing Led policies are required for policy learning and implementation practice.

Despite the progress made across the member states in adopting inclusive policies for homeless people, as Rita Bence and Tessza Udvarahelyi outline, policies of social exclusion utilising repressive criminal justice policies are also evident, as demonstrated in the case study of Hungary, where despite vigorous and compelling domestic and international opposition, it is now a criminal offence to live in public spaces across Hungary. Homeless people rough sleeping can now be fined, and if convicted twice within a six-month period, may be committed to jail. This blatant policy of repression is fortunately relatively rare across member states (for a recent overview, see Fernández-Evangelista and Jones, 2013), but the thoughtful responses from Don Mitchell, Steve Gaetz, Marie-Eve Sylvestre, Evelyn Dyb, Joe Doherty and Jürgen van Mahs to an article by Eoin O’Sullivan is Vol 7(1) of the Journal on this topic shows that a range of more subtle and invidious mechanisms of repression are also evident. Such subtle policies can include regulations on having a ‘local connection’ to access to homelessness services as shown by Michel Planijie and Mathijus Tuynman in their case study of the Netherlands.

The implementation of repressive policies for homeless people in Hungary is largely domestic in origin, although some cite the broader trans-national influence of neoliberalism, but what is happening in Greece, as outlined by Olga Theodorikaakou, Alexandra Aalamanou and Kyriakos Katsadoros is largely driven by external actors. The impact of the ‘austerity measures’ imposed on the Greek population in producing a new generation of homeless people is a timely reminder of the structural basis for much contemporary homelessness. When social safety nets disappear, immiserization, marginalisation and homelessness will result. Policies that promote active inclusion rather than criminalisation and exclusion achieve more sustainable and ultimately just outcomes, as demonstrated by Simon Güntner and Jamie Harding in their comparison of active inclusion measures in Newcastle in England and Hamburg in Germany.

The degree to which an enhanced role for the European Commission would strengthen evidence based solutions to homelessness and promote inclusionary policy instruments is dealt with by Liz Gosme in her article on the ‘Europeanisation’ of homelessness policies. She argues that tackling homelessness is now an integrated part of social inclusion agenda at an EU level, and that a number of countries, far from complaining of EU interference in social policy matters, are calling on the EU to support national governments in their efforts to address social issues such as homelessness. Achieving progress on homelessness across the European Union was the basis for hosting a meeting of Ministers with responsibility for homelessness, under the auspices of the Irish Presidency, in the Irish College in Leuven in March. Aidan Culhane and Niamh Randall provide a unique insight into both the process of achieving consensus amongst diverse member states, and the tangible outcomes of the meeting in agreeing key principles in such areas as knowledge sharing, funding, research and innovation and advice.

One of the difficulties in achieving an EU consensus on the most appropriate and effective policies to end homelessness, is that different member states are at varying levels in terms of their knowledge of the nature and extent of homelessness and their policy evolution. For some member states, ensuring that large numbers of people are not required to sleep on the streets drives very practical responses to homelessness, often in the form of large scale congregate facilities. For other member states, the policy priority is how to close such congregate facilities. To assist the development of knowledge on the extent and nature of homelessness in member states with a limited tradition of research, the Journal has sought to provide a review of research, policies and practices in such member states, and in this edition Mina Petrović and Milena Timotijević profile homelessness in Serbia and Morena Šoštarić profiles homelessness in Croatia.

The next edition of the European Journal of Homelessness will publish select papers from the Annual Research Conference on Homelessness in Europe, which has held in the Alice Salomon Hochschule in Berlin. We hope that you find the mix of original research papers, policy review, think pieces, response pieces, and book reviews of interest, and that this eclectic mixture offers thoughtful and stimulating contributions to advance effective responses to ending homelessness.

References
